PRICE FIVE CENTS

The Annisquam Region

WARTIME is no distraction to the younger yachting element here and Saturday afternoon and Sunday mornings the rivalry between the owners of the "Birds," the "Cats" and the "Dogs" is as keen as that between the Kaiser and the Allies. An added interest is the series of team races for cups offered by Prof. Norton.

The leaders of the younger set, Frederick D. Hawkins and Donald Simson entertained Miss Carolyn Bailey, Miss Marie Norton and Miss Katharine Gordon at The Barnacle Tea House on Tuesday.

Mrs. Dwight P. Thomas of the Brynmere was hostess on Friday to several of her friends at this time-honored house. Mrs. Harry Wiggin, Madam Ives and Mrs. Frederick Ives, Mrs. Arthur Kidder, Mrs. Henry Sherburn and Mrs. Francis Hill were of the party.

Others who have returned to this homelike little place over the 'Squam river are Miss Isabelle H. Ellison, Miss Bertha Y. Bught and Miss E. L. Wandell summering at Pigeon Cove; Miss Beatrice Lincoln Allen of Gloucester and her friend Miss Mary B. Danaker of Albany.

How we used to laugh at the jolly 30 cents, it meant "minus nothing." Quite different now with the round trip on the steamer Wonsquam, it means "plus something." Many nature lovers have been enjoying the afternoon and moonlight sails. The steamer, touching next The Barnacle, Annisquam or at the ferry landings in Gloucester and East Gloucester affords a good opportunity not only to enjoy the sunlight, cool breeze or moonlight, whichever one wished, but also the fine, artistic sky line of Gloucester, with its church spires, masts of its sail barques and fishing crafts and Magnolia in the distance with its far famed Norman's Woe.

The District Nurse Association entertained the matrons and younger society set of Gloucester at The Barnacle, on Wednesday afternoon. About fifty were present. They may well congratulate themselves as over five hundred dollars was raised for this much needed charity, but it was done by the active efforts of the helpers. Excessive heat or rain did not deter them from doing the collecting.

A bright and entertaining set of young girls have been occupying a summer camp for girls called The Coop, near Wingaersheek beach. They have been making expeditions, sight seeing and had a party at The Barnacle on Monday. Those present were Miss Florence S. Crocker, Miss Evelyn S. Graustein, Miss Virginia Luce, Miss Isadore Parlier, Miss Mildred Fay, Miss Helen A. Harvey, Miss Dorothy Bartlett, Miss Wilma Bacheller, all of Back Bay, Boston; Misses Helen and Ella W. Kendall of

East Gloucester

THE first week of August has come in scorchingly. Old Sirius, the dog star, the brightest star in the heavens, supposed to be responsible for hot waves in this period has worked overtime and has sent down his rays fiercely on the stricken earth. Between the Kaiser and Sirius the Earth is a torrid place of existence these days.

It's an ill hot wave that doesn't blow good to the proprietors of the hotels and as a result the demand for accommodations has nearly outrun the supply. As a matter of fact East Gloucester has been the least affected of any section as regards July patronage. With the exception of one or two houses the falling off has not been noticeable. If the hot wave should last into the

The Rockport Shore

THE proposition advanced in this column last week of making the section of Cape Ann, the backland plateau known as Dogtown commons as the site of a concentration camp from which troops after training might be shipped from Rockport across the water, the shortest possible route, appears to some feasible and finds favor. For a Spring, Summer and Fall training camp there is much to commend it. The weather in this period is the best in the United States; the water the purest and softest—and this is all important—the drainage and health facilities are all that could be desired, as near the base of supplies, surrounded by clean and moral influences, etc. Five or six square miles of this

Magnolia

THERE was a large attendance last Thursday afternoon at the residence of Miss Corlies, Shore road at the instrumental concert given by Miss Allen and other artists of Boston in aid of the fund for the French wounded. The entire North Shore colony was well represented. Among those from Magnolia were noted, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Morgan, Mrs. John Blanchard, Mrs. Benjamin Ridgeley of Philadelphia and Mrs. Costello C. Converse.

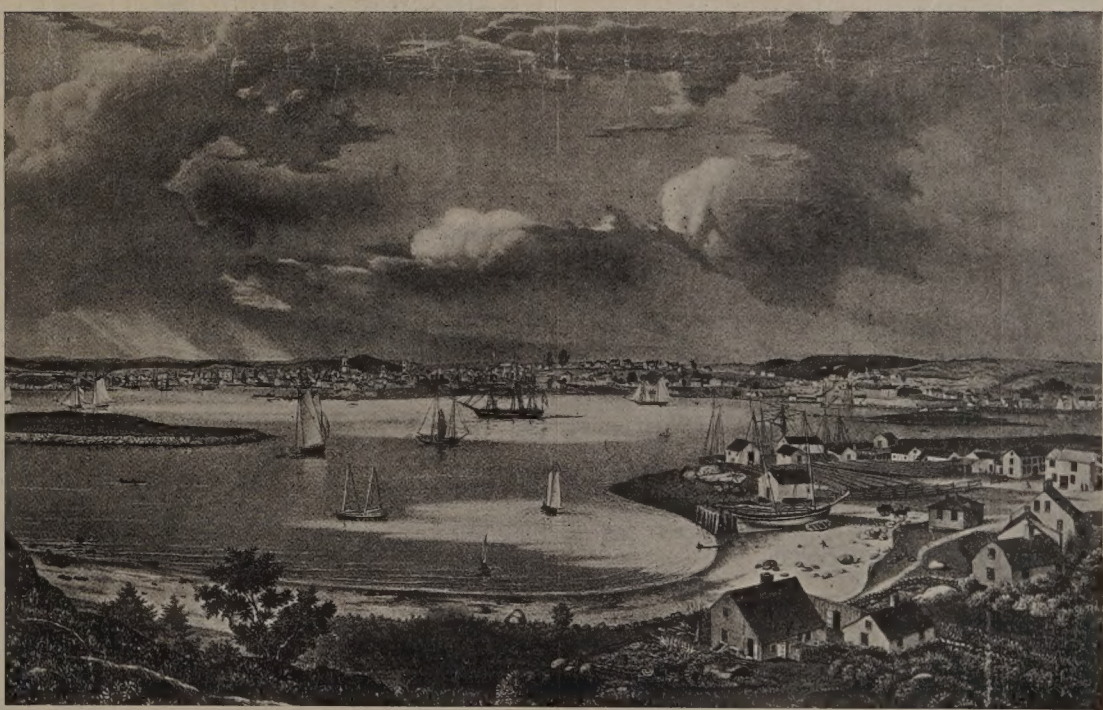

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weston of Lowell are the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Knowlton at their cottage in Fuller st.

Mrs. Louis J. Belloni and daughter Sadie and granddaughter Miss Catherine McLaughlin of the Oceanside were the guests of Miss A. F. Hill of the Hawthorne Inn at tea Saturday. Miss Hill was for some years a guest at the Oceanside.

Cards were received here for the wedding which occurred today at the Appleton chapel, Cambridge, of Elizabeth Seamans Thaxter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Thaxter, and Elliott Hubbard. The Hubbards for many years were cottagers at Magnolia, Miss Fanny Faulkner being his aunt.

The fair in aid of the Village church occurred on the lawn and in the church Wednesday afternoon and was well patronized. The chairman was Mrs. Thomas H. Hunt; Mrs. Ernest Howe being assistant chairman. The chairmen of the various tables were as follows: Aprons, Mrs. Fred Lycett; mystery Mrs. Annie Story; fancy work, Mrs. Frank Dunbar; 25 cent table, Mrs. Wilson Richardson; cake table, Mrs. Ernest Lucas; candy table, Mrs. Willard Boye; flower table, Mrs. Harry C. Foster; rugs, Mrs. Rose Nelson. A substantial accession to the church fund was the result.

Late arrivals at the Oceanside:—Miss Helen Audenreid, Philadelphia; Miss Mildred A. Klingner, Boston; Mrs. Edgar M. Johnson, Edgar M. Johnson, 3d, Lawrence P. Johnson, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Fleming Tuckerman, Mr. Arthur Tuckerman, New York; Hosea Webster, Montclair; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Martin, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Griswold, Albany, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bliss, Attleboro, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Cone, Colonia, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Cairns, E. Orange, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sinnickson, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. John Johnston, Miss Ailene Westwood, Pawtucket, R. I.; Dr. F. F. Kenney, J. F. McGratty, Worcester; Mr. and Mrs. George H. P. Oliver, Mrs. G. H. Barrett, New York; Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Austin, Washington; Miss Ruth Ely, Providence; Mrs. Fred Van Lennep, Miss Claire T. Van Lennep, Mrs. H. Newell Reynolds, Miss Harriet N. middle of September receipts would approach a normal season as people would stay to escape the heat of the interior. When a man fills up his coal bins in the Fall he resolves to economize in the use of coal throughout the winter. At first he shovels in fuel sparingly. In January comes a prolonged cold snap and all thoughts of economy is cast aside and the coal is shoveled into the consuming maw of the fire pot in great quantities in order to evolve a protection from the elements. Later comes the replenishment which it was fondly hoped to avoid. Similarly no matter how much a family may resolve to economize in its stay at shore or mountain a prolonged hot spell into September dissipates all thought of economy and the reserve bank account is drawn upon for the necessary funds to ensure an extended stay at the shore. Life without comfort is scarcely worth while and all effort is to its physical enjoyment and the avoidance of the unbearable.

territory to be had for the asking.

The hotels in this section are gaining in patronage and August promises a busy month. To those who seek only fine natural surroundings, sea and woodland scenery unsurpassed, without any added features of a lively social nature, this is the place to come par excellence. There are veritable Arcady's of retreats by the sea under the scrub pines of Pigeon Cove where in the deep shade one may look out upon one of the finest expanses of sea along the entire North Atlantic and "rest and invite his soul." (Whitman.)

The following women of the summer colony were patronesses at the fete Wednesday afternoon in aid of the L. M. Haskin's hospital:—Mrs. George H. Babbitt, Mrs. Charles S. Adams, Mrs. Perley Chase, Mrs. A. G. Clerk, Mrs. George H. Corey, Mrs. Henry Edward Drayton, Mrs. Harry Dutton, Mrs. Charles Evans, Mrs. James A. Gage, Mrs. F. Harrison Garrett,

TO ADVERTISERS

THE CAPE ANN SHORE, now in its twenty-first consecutive season, is the only summer resort publication on Cape Ann. It reaches every section of the cape, and is the only means of communication of the kind between the merchants and the summer residents. Therefore its value as an advertising medium is self-evident. It contains each week a full and complete account of the social happenings of the summer resort section. It occupies a place by itself in the advertising field, reaching the most profitable customers along the North Shore. Advertisers should remember these facts.

American Patriotism In The Higher Classes

Are the Americans of the native stock—that is as a class, patriotic? In this city of Gloucester which sent three companies to Bunker Hill and nearly all of its male population to the war of the Revolution on land and sea and one-seventh of its population to the Civil war, nearly 58 per cent. of those who were called upon to register for the draft claimed exemption on various grounds more or less flimsy when measured by the high standards of patriotism.

And yet the call was of the loftiest in all history. To liberate little Belgium, jumped upon and trampled by the brutality of Germany and also to lend a helping hand to France without whose aid—Lafayette, DeGrasse, Rochambeau and others we should never have achieved independence. Surely this ought to appeal to every patriotic American. The truth is it failed to reach home and make the appeal to the multitude that it should. Then came the alternative, conscription. True it is that some 50,000 young Americans with ideals crossed the border and enlisted in the fighting forces of the Allies, mainly those of Great Britain and France. The Johnny Poes who fell with the foreign legion, always in the forefront of danger and the Norman Prince's, the aviator who also perished in the performance of his duty, are only two of the noble outstanding evidences of many other similar unselfish life offerings of American youth to obligation and duty.

In The Saturday Evening Post, the only publication of which we are aware that prints the language of the United States, there has been running a story which came to a close this week, "The High Heart."

Two of its principal characters are a girl of good Canadian family, an instructress for the child of one of the great American financial magnates and a companion for his wife, and another is Larry Strangways the private secretary of another magnate, a rival of Brookshire who employs the young woman in his family. The story purports to be and is probably an intimate revelation of the life of this class with its ambitions, its illicit liaisons, loves and hates exposed to common view. The young woman and Strangways are attracted to each other and discourse seriously on various topics, including the quality of patriotism among the higher classes of Americans. Strangways is talking:

"It was about the country that he talked—its growth, its vastness. Even as recently as when he was a boy it was still a manageable thing, with a population reckoned at no more than seventy or eighty millions. It had been homogeneous in spirit if not in blood, and those who had come from other lands, and been welcomed and adopted, accepted their new situation with some gratitude. Patriotism was still a word with a meaning, and if it now and then became spread-eagleism it was only as the waves when thrown too far inland become froth. The wave was the thing and it hadn't ebbed.

"And do you think it has ebbed now?" I asked.

He didn't answer this question directly.

"We're becoming colossal. We shall soon count our people by the hundred million and more. Of these relatively few will have gotten our ideals. Some will reject them. There are mutterings already of other standards to which we must be taught to conform. Some of our own best people of pure Anglo-Saxon descent are losing heart and renouncing and denouncing the democratic tradition, though they've nothing to put in its place. And we're growing so huge—with a hugeness that threatens to make us lethargic." * * * * *

"National lethargy can easily exist side by side with individual energy. Take China, for instance. There are few peoples in the world more individually diligent than the Chinese; and yet when it comes to national stirring it's a country as difficult to move as an unwieldy overfed giant. It's flabby and nerveless and inert, the most industrious population in the world; and yet it's a congeries of inner weaknesses, and a prey to anyone who chooses to attack it."

"And you think this country is on the way to being the China of the West?"

"I don't say 'on the way.' There's a danger of it. In proportion as we too become unwieldy and overfed, the circulation of that national impulse which is like blood grown slower. The elephant is a heavily moving beast in comparison with the lion."

"But it's the more intelligent," I argued, still with a disposition to be encouraging.

"Intelligence won't save it when the lion leaps on its back."

"How are you going to do it?"

"By men. We've come to a time when the country is going to need stronger men than it ever had, and more of them." * * * * *

"The country's coming to a place where it will need disinterested men, and whole-hearted men, and clean-hearted men, if it's going to pull through. It's extraordinary how deficient we've been in leaders who had any of these characteristics, to say nothing of all three."

"Is the United States singular in that?"

"No; perhaps not. But it's got to have them if it's going to be saved. Moreover," he went on, "it must find them among the young men. The older men are all steeped and branded and tarred and feathered with the materialism of the nineteenth century. They're perfectly sodden. They see no patriotism except in loyalty to a political machine; and no loyalty to a political machine except for what they can get out of it. From our presidents down most of them will sacrifice any law of right to the good of a party. They don't realize that nine times out of ten the good of a party is the evil of the common weal; and our older men will never learn the fact. If we can't wake the younger men, we're done for." * * * * *

"No one is ever going to get away with this thing who thinks of leadership. There are times in the history of countries when men are called on to give up everything and be true to an ideal. I believe the time is approaching. It may come to Europe in one way and to America in another; but it's coming to us all. There'll be a call for—for—" he hesitated at the word—"for consecration."

"And what do you mean by that—by consecration?"

"I suppose I mean knowing what this country stands for, and being true to oneself through thick and thin. There'll be thin and there'll be thick—plenty of them both—but it will be a question of the value of the individual. A handful of disinterested, whole-hearted, clean-hearted, and perhaps I ought to add stout-hearted Americans, who know what they believe and live by it, will hold the fort against all efforts, within and without, to pull it down."

"We must stand by it, we younger men, just as the younger men of the late fifties stood by the principles represented by Lincoln. I believe in my heart that the need is going to be greater for us than it was for them, and if we don't respond to it, then may the Lord have mercy on our souls."

I give this scrap of conversation because it introduced a new note into my knowledge of Americans. I had not supposed that any Americans felt like that. In the Rossiter circle

I never saw anything but an immense self-satisfaction. Money and what money could do was, I am sure, the only topic of their thought. Their ideas of position and privilege were all spuriously European. Nothing was indigenous. Except for their sense of money, their aims were as foreign to the soil as their pictures, their tapestries, their furniture and their clothes. Even stranger I found the imitation of Europe in tastes which Europe was daily giving up."

In this same Post of July 14 in the story "Warriors All" is this opening paragraph. "To some guys bein' a patriot means hangin' a two bit flag out of their window standin' up and throwin' out their chest when the band plays the Star Spangled Banner and openly admittin' that Land of the the Free can lick anybody in the block. To others it don't mean so much—they just grab a gun, get out there in the trenches and express their sentiments in the matter with bullets."

If one peeps into the nooks and corners of these lovely gardens of Cape Ann, or follows the shore to the haunts of the fishermen at Folly Cove and Rockport, one finds these spots already occupied by the artist with brush and sketch blocks. An exhibition of interesting compositions is to be held at The Barnacle, by one of Philadelphia's well-known women, Miss Elizabeth Schwartz of the Plastic Club of that city. Members of the New York Water Color Society, members of the Association of Women's Painters and Sculptors of New York. She has won two post graduate fellowships in succession at the Philadelphia School of Design, and has been invited to exhibit at the American Federation of Arts Rotary as well as regularly exhibiting at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and Chicago Institute. This exhibition will be hung in the tea room of The Barnacle, Annisquam, Monday, August 6.

Wendell L. Nichols and family of Brookline are recent accessions to the cottage colony. They came down this week to the Malonson cottage on Norman av. for the rest of the summer.

The meeting of the Village Improvement Society scheduled for Monday night at the Annex was postponed until a later date owing to the fact that the excessive heat prevented many from being present and it is desirable to have a full representative attendance in order that important subjects bearing on the best interests of Magnolia be opened up for debate.

M. D. Mahar and family of Roanoke, Va., who have been occupying the Foster house in Freshwater cove, removed this week to the Chick cottage on Norman av., which they had last year. The Mahar's began to come to Magnolia some 15 years ago, first to the New Magnolia while that hostelry was in existence, then to the Oceanside. Last year they had the Chick cottage.

Recently one of the principal New York papers asked the conductor of THE SHORE to indicate whether it was fear of sharks or submarines or both which caused the lack of patronage at the seashore hotels. In view of the fact that the cottage renting season, with the exception of one section, had been the best on record it was hard to reconcile any such reasoning or deduction with the facts, for if fear of the supposed perils named was potent to keep people from coming to hotels it ought to be doubly so in the matter of cottage leaseings. One can get out of a hotel, so to speak, at a moment's notice thereby cutting off all expenses. But one cannot get away so easily from a cottage and if so would be obliged to forfeit the lease price for the entire season. Evidently sharks or German submarines is not the cause for early season's bad business.

A cottage resident of Cape Ann has returned from an automobile trip in Maine and the White Mountains covering the last ten days in July during which overnight stays were made at many of the principal hostleries. Both in Maine and in the White Mountains the report was that there was a marked decline from the number of guests entertained at these hostleries as at corresponding period in former years and this was most marked at the high price hostleries, the only exception being at Poland Springs where the patronage seemed about normal.

This being the case what becomes of the submarine or shark theory? Neither can penetrate the fastnesses of the White Mountains or inland resort, no matter how resourceful or super-efficient our friends the Germans may be.

The fact is the shadow of the war bulks large and dark over American domestic life. The draft and its uncertainties and possibilities of war brought home to every household and the added conviction that this must be a period of economy has been responsible in a large measure for the falling off in summer hotel patronage in July among a class to whom economy to that extent, at least, was not absolutely imperative and who could without any financial strain have visited their usual summer habitat. The falling off was due simply to a state of mind; a reiteration of "save and win the war," etc., working its suggestion among poor and rich alike.

How great luxuries have been cut is evidenced by the fact that the figures of the tender at the Blynman bridge at the entrance of the harbor and Annisquam river shows that where three yachts passed under last year and in former years but one goes through today; that is, the yacht travel has fallen off two-thirds. Yachting and yacht racing all along the coast has practically been suspended except in one or two instances. Many owners both of large and small crafts have not put their yachts in commission. It is felt that it is out of step with the spirit of the times, an extravagance which public opinion would be quick to condemn. This sentiment of saving and economy extending all along the line is no doubt the true explanation for the falling off in hotel patronage in July.

However, now the draft is over as far as its selective machinery is concerned and especially since the hot wave came in, the hotels are beginning to wear their old time look of prosperity. A potent cause is escape from the heat and above all a desire to save the little ones and the aged from the high death rate caused by the intense heat of the interior. The seashore with its bathing and pure air is the refuge from this evil.

The Week's Racing at Annisquam

One of the finest chances for a profitable afternoon's racing afforded for many a day was by a mischance nullified last Saturday afternoon.

It appears that the signal had gone out that a triangular course was to be sailed and that shortly before the start this was recalled and a signal flown that a windward and leeward race was to be the order of the day. The word was passed along but as is usually the case there was a misunderstanding and one half the boats sailed one course and one half the other.

While according to the rules as the writer has interpreted them it is up to the yacht skipper to keep himself informed as to the exact course yet in an experience of thirty years as judge and observer of yachting races in the one or two instances in which a course has been changed suddenly it has resulted in confusion and misunderstanding and an unsatisfactory conclusion of the day's sport.

No course, when once announced, should be changed thereafter unless under great stress as for instance when the judges are convinced that the weather is too boisterous on an outside course and that reasons of safety imperatively compel a change. Then when the skippers and crews are looking for something of the sort all may be amply forewarned. But there was no excuse for this Saturday.

As a result half the boats in the Bird and Cat classes sailed the windward course to Ipswich buoy and back, the others taking the opposite triangle to Plum cove, thence to the buoy in the bay and return. Perhaps the best solution might be to call this "no race" and order it resailed. To play it safe the skippers of the Tern and Puffin sailed the two courses.

In the fifteen-footers class three contestants came to the line the course being to Ipswich buoy and return. Com. Wiggin in the Tabasco got the advantage and was in the lead on the windward work but when in the middle of the bay an accident tied him up and in the meantime the Nisan pulled out to windward and ahead. However, as soon as the Tabasco got in action again she began to show her quality, looking the wind in the eye and before the buoy was passed ate to weather of the Nisan and rounded about two boats lengths ahead.

On the run home the Tabasco gradually increased her lead although the race was no walkover.

The last three Saturday afternoons have brought forth slashing breezes while the following Sunday mornings been characterized by zephyr airs interspersed with calms. Such was the case Sunday. Years ago the yachtsmen in Ipswich bay noted that a breeze of good quality was usually blowing afternoons sometimes by way of Halibut point and again from the Essex shore.

The first in a series of three Sunday team races for cups offered by Prof. Norton was sailed the results to be figured out by the mathematicians of the club at the conclusion. There were four teams of five boats each, three "birds" and two "cats."

A light southwesterly breeze prevailed and the course was the club triangle to Plum cove then to the A. Y. C. buoy in the bay and return.

The teams are as follows:

Team 1. Hawk, Sea Dove, Puffin, Catling and Scat. Team 2. Archaeopetry, Katchup, L'Oiseau, Tern and Paws. Team 3. Katzenjammer, Osprey, Squab, Albatross, Catspaw. Team 4. Coppcat, Broiler, Bluebird, Mavis, Catalena.

In the light southwest wind in the run down the river and the broad reach to the outer buoy the Mavis showed the lead slightly ahead of the Tern and the Broiler but on the end on work Capt. Jack Hooper showed his ability in berthing his boat to windward with the necessary footing work and when the lighthouse was reached was in the lead. A little later the Broiler also passed the Catalena which dropped to third where she finished. H. E. Worcester in the No Name sailed independently and negotiated the course in 1-22-04. The summary:

The Rockaway is enjoying a very busy season and has been filled to overflowing the past few weeks. Its new addition of twenty four sleeping rooms as well as several assembly rooms makes it very attractive and pleasant for its guests. The sun parlor and recreation hall has excelled anything of its kind on the North Shore. It has entire glass walls, giving excellent light and air. In the evening the hops are enjoyed there and if there ever was a utility room the Rockaway has it.

The Rockaway with its full line of boats and canoes offers the best accommodations for pleasure seekers on the North Shore. The launch Rockaway is kept busy day and night. Fishing parties are on the waiting list as the success of these trips has never been equalled in the history of Cape Ann. The men have had everything their own way, landing hundreds of pounds of fish. But this did not in the least "faze" the ladies, so just to show them that they knew where those Finnies lived they started out, oiled in slickers, donned the souwesters, and gracefully prepared to capture the laurels, which they surely did. After fishing for two hours the Misses Jackson, their mother and aunt landed about five hundred pounds of the finest specimens of cod that ever decorated the Rockaway float. Miss Avis Jackson, who is a Wellesley athlete, landing the largest fish caught this season. Its weight was thirty and one-half pounds. It was caught in as graceful a manner as ever a fish was landed. Now the men are consumed with curiosity as to what kind of bait the young ladies used but this is a dark secret and they refuse to divulge it to the gentlemen.

Arrivals at the Rockaway the past week are:—A. H. Kerr, Boston; H. A. Neyland and family, New Bedford; Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Anderson, Miss Margaret Anderson, Detroit; Mrs. J. W. SECTION 14. Every person operating a motor vehicle shall bring the vehicle and the motor propelling it immediately to a stop when approaching a horse or other draft animal being led, ridden or driven, if such animal appears to be frightened and if the person in charge thereof shall signal so to do; and, if travelling in the opposite direction to that in which such animal is proceeding, said vehicle shall remain stationary so long as may be reasonable to allow such horse or animal to pass; or, if travelling in the same direction, the person operating shall use reasonable caution in thereafter passing such horse or other animal. Recall the little flower girl who sells nosegays about the hotels? In the lobby of the Harbor View hotel has been placed one of those boxes which ask contributions of three cents or more for the relief of the Belgian children. This attracted the attention of the little girl and unobserved, as she thought, she produced some pennies from her store and one by one deposited them in the box. Something had touched her childish imagination and she wanted to do her share. Talk about the child's mite! Proprietor Walter F. Osborne was a spectator of the affair, however, and the episode made more than a fleeting impression upon him. So all you to whom this may come, patronize the little flower girl when she comes your way. She certainly deserves it. How many contribute with as cheerful and consecrated a heart as she?

The North Shore Theatre

This Spring a new and up-to-date theatre was completed just below the site of the Olympia theatre so well known to the summer colony and was opened to the public several weeks ago.

Nothing known to modern theatre construction was omitted to make this theatre one of the most complete and artistic of its kind to be found anywhere. It is absolutely fireproof and equipped with the latest and commodious seats. It is built on solid ground and is equipped with a perfect ventilating system whereby the air is completely exhausted every fifteen minutes fresh air replacing that pumped out. By an ingenious device the heating pipes become transformed into a refrigerating system in summer. The decorative scheme, dove color and gold is restful and artistic and the theatre is the subject of much favorable comment. Altogether it furnishes an institution of which the city has some degree of pride.

The manager is Mr. James P. Kincaide who for many years was identified with the Olympia theater in a similar capacity and is well and favorably known to a large circle of summer people. Mr. Kincaide brings with him a thorough knowledge of the wishes and desires of the motion photo patrons of this city and presents only a program of the very best productions offering.

The boxes of the new theater, of which there are quite a number, all command a fine view of the stage and box parties may make engagements in advance by advising the management. The Shore recommends this theatre to the patronage of the most exacting. Change of program is made three times weekly as will be seen by consulting the advertisement in another column. This is the only theatre open to the public in the city. Halfdan Hanson who has designed many of the finest residences along the North Shore was the architect.

Ravenswood Park is Much Improved

One of the beauty spots of Cape Ann somewhat unfamiliar to the general public is Ravenswood Park. The trustees of this beautiful tract of 300 acres of natural woodland territory have been doing considerable work during the winter of clearing and developing the park and now tender to the public the beauties of the foliage. Several miles of roads and paths have been built and laid out quite recently.

A visit to the place will be found very interesting and undoubtedly people will find it an ideal place to spend a Sunday afternoon.

View of Gloucester 1830-50

A historian, especially of towns, need not necessarily be a writer in order to pass down to history vital facts concerning a community. Gloucester has been fortunate in the fact that two men of capacity, Fitz H. Lane, a painter, and Maj. John Mason, a craftsman and local geographer, both of whom wrought from 1830 to about 1850, have left in paintings and maps of the town invaluable records of the appearance of the place in the period of their work. Lane, an artist of more than ordinary ability and technique, loved deeply his native place. His canvases depict the town from almost every angle, from East Gloucester—the frontispiece being a copy from what is considered his best work in that direction—from the outer harbor; from the harbor cove; head of the harbor, and from Fort point with its view of the old fort, now completely obliterated and built over. Maj. Mason's maps of Cape Ann are the work of an expert and give accurately topographical features and what is of much importance, attaches the names then given to various localities which settle many a mooted point in local history.

The picture of today was painted after 1837 from a place then called Banner Hill, East Gloucester, the crest of which is now occupied by a pagoda-like cottage.

Prominent in the picture is the Gloucester house, later the Mason, now the Puritan house, built in 1810; the Universalist church, which has one of the finest and most admired steeples in New England, showing the influence of Inigo Jones and the square towered wooden steeple of the First parish (Unitarian) society erected but a short time before. In the left foreground now covered with houses is Beacon Hill, so named because a fire beacon to warn of the approach of an enemy was established there in early times. Later it was known as Governor's Hill and is so set down on Mason's map.

The gambrel roofed house in the right corner was the residence of Capt. William Coas, one of the most noted privateering captains in the American Revolution. He brought home prizes aggregating several million dollars in value.

At the left hand center is Rocky Neck, then used as a sheep pasture which went begging at the time for $300, now covered with summer homes with those of the permanent residents and on the point in the view by wharves, a railway and fish houses. In the center is Duncan's Point, now covered by the plant of the American halibut company, and opposite is Fort Point, the fort plainly discernible, unbuilt upon, now covered thickly with wharves and fish warehouses. Five Pound Island is plainly apparent. The whole depicts and visualizes much better than any printed word just how Gloucester looked from East Gloucester from 1820 to 1850, during which time there were no important changes in the building aspect of the place.

The artist Lane himself lived on a knoll in the center of Duncan's Point, on which he constructed a seven-gabled stone house, just the dwelling that a man of fine instincts would build for himself. Although he builded for all time apparently, none of his kindred remain and the place has long ago passed into other hands.

The Wetherell Soda Fountain

Last year the demands on the soda dispensing department of the Wetherell Pharmacy in Postoffice square became so pronounced that at the commencement of the season a new fountain was put in. This in turn has proved inadequate to the demand upon it and accordingly another fountain, the largest and most approved on the entire North Shore, has been installed in order to give sufficient accommodation to the constantly increasing demand. This is conclusive proof of the growth of what is the largest soda fountain business in this section.

Mr. Wetherell has enlarged his establishment by taking in a rear apartment and refinishing the interior in mahogany, the whole making a pleasing combination. This is the oldest pharmacy in the city, established by the father of the present proprietor, who is enhancing the reputation established by its founder.

Large Sale In Hamilton

Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Acquires Various Estates

An important real estate deal in Hamilton is the purchase of the whole or a part of various properties aggregating a total of 353 acres of land by Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., who before her marriage was Miss Phyllis Sears the younger of the two daughters of Herbert M. Sears of Boston and Pride's Crossing.

The various parcels of land have been assembled in behalf of Mrs. Tuckerman by Lester E. Libby of Hamilton and Frederic Sprague Goodwin, of the Boston law firm of Goodwin, Dressel & Parker, has attended to the matter of deeds, titles, etc. The purchases include the whole of the Caleb W. Dodge estate of many acres and the Randolph B. Dodge place (sometimes known as the Pingree farm) which two properties are spoken of, familiarly, as "the Dodge fields."

Other property acquired includes some part of other Dodge estates and a part of the C. W. Hobbs place also the Joseph Lovering estate and a part of the estate of Hon. Nathan Mathews, bordering on Black Bro. The Mann place of a little less than three acres, also is included in the purchase.

These properties adjoin each other and they provide a frontage on Asbury street and on Gale street, more often called Dodges' lane which leads to a frontage on Highland street. Surrounding these various pieces of land are the country estates of well known people, including Mr. Matthews, Julian Codman, Mrs. George D. Sargent and the Cilley estate. The property lies between the railroad tracks and the section of Hamilton known as Asbury Grove.

It is Mrs. Tuckerman's plan eventually to build a large house as a place of country residence, although this probably will not be done for a year or more, and the land will then undergo development to make fitting and attractive surroundings. The marriage of Miss Sears to Mr. Tuckerman took place a year ago, on June 20, at the little Episcopal church at Beverly Farms, not far from the summer estate of her father at Pride's Crossing. His place is known as "Wood Rock," and adjoining it is the home of his other son-in-law and daughter, Mrs. Bayard Warren, the latter formerly Miss Lillian Sears. Next to Mrs. Warren's estate is the Francis Bartlett estate, the old-time place which belonged to the grandfather of Mrs. Warren and Mrs. Tuckerman. It will be occupied this season as last year by Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman during the summer months.

ARMSTRONG'S BUSY CORNER

106 MAIN, COR. CENTER, GLOUCESTER

Wolf Hill—Ferry Hill—Riverview

This is the section along the Annisquam river comprising the main part of its eastern embankment. Wolf Hill, the promontory which abuts into the river opposite Rust, Annisquam or Biskie island was one of the first places resorted to by the people of the city for camping, at first in tents followed by cottages. The late George H. Proctor for more than fifty years identified with Gloucester journalism built on the crest of the hill and enjoyed thoroughly the relaxation of a sail in the river in his little boat Doris. Thaddeus E. Friend who also owns an extensive tract on the crest of the hill has by his energy transformed the hill from a bare, sterile scarp of granite to a thickly wooded and pleasing landscape effect. He is a public benefactor. Some thirty years ago its southerly side was marked by an abandoned quarry. Shortly after the Civil war some enterprising granite men set up a quarry here in getting what they called Aberdeen granite, the original a beautiful red. The iron had stained the ledge a reddish-brown and the quarrying of "Aberdeen" stone went on for a while until the project fell through. The place had always been called Wolf Hill and as such appears on old maps probably because of its resemblance, fancied or otherwise, to the animal of disrepute of the name. Just above the ferry conducted for more than a hundred years by the Hodgkins family had its terminus from Biskie island as it was then known, it being the only road from the west parish into the central part of the town then located at meeting house green just below the Gilbert hospital. John Mason's map, drawn in 1831, gives the name as Cherry, not Ferry Hill and the ferry as Hodgkins' ferry. The last descendant of the family, the patriarchal John Hodgkins to live in that vicinity, died some two years ago. Just above on what is now the Riverview section was what was known as Whortleberry hill. No name is given on this map to the point intervening between Whortleberry hill and Wheeler's point, now called Thurston's point.

The death of Capt. Sylvanus Smith during the winter removed perhaps the first citizen of Cape Ann. Capt. Smith, born in Sandy bay, was a remarkable man. Commencing as a mere lad on the deck of a fisherman by his executive ability and energy he founded one of the largest businesses in Gloucester. He was a man of marked literary capacity and his productions, both from the historical and general side are valuable contributions to local literature. Of marked social traits, in his leisure so well earned, he delighted to give pleasure to others and his fine motor and sailing boats were generally at the pleasure of many of his friends and cottagers along the river. The captain was at once a skilful navigator, cook and raconteur and delighted in giving his guests entertainment. His was a distinct loss to the city he served so well in many positions of trust and importance, the state house and at Washington. A type of the strong men of his period who have all passed.

Ghosts of Dead Waves

The tidal waters rushing roll and rise
Along the shore;
Like crowded ranks of half-drowned
frightened sheep
Up the beach.
On the bar like writhing serpents does the surf
Creep and coil.
The waters sweep in never tiring play
In the bay
And then burst as in unrestrained glee—
See the foam
As they fall, rise and sink on the waves
Toward the land
For a moment to remain cool and white—
Floating—free,
Like to phantoms— O, ye ghosts
of dead waves
In the sea.

Merchant's Island

There are two large islands in the Annisquam river, the Rust or Annisquam island, originally Biskie island, and Merchant's, the latter nearest the mouth of the river. Both have always been in high favor with cottagers owing to their pleasing location, excellent facilities for fishing, bathing and other diversions of summer. Merchant's island is interesting from the fact that the Indians from the coast of Maine who came here annually in summer to obtain a store of fish and dried clams for the winter made the island their headquarters. Within a few years the sites of their camps were quite visible. In the Fall they sailed or paddled away to the Maine coast across Ipswich bay with their dried clams and fish, the idea being to get near the source of food supply, the game in the woods in winter.

The island is a pleasant place and was early availed for summer camping. Many of the cottagers come here year after year, Mr. Searle being the veteran of the colony save, of course, the family of the owners.

This year some of those who came to the island for many summers as cottagers drop out and to one accustomed to writing these names for 30 years their passing seems like that of old friends, although the writer never came in personal touch with any of them.

R. W. Oliver and family of Charlestown are spending their 31st year on the island.

Mrs. Lydia E. Merchant and family of Gloucester are occupying their cottage on the island which has been in possession of the Merchant family for more than a hundred years.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Clement Searle of Chelsea have returned to the island for their 34th season and with the exception of the family of Mrs. Merchant are the oldest cottagers on the island. With them are Mr. and Mrs. W. Leon Searle and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Searle.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Fall of Medford are occupying their cottage on the island, this being their 13th season. They are accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stewart and son Arthur of Dorchester and Elliott Hoadley of Medford.

Mrs. Marilla Ford of New York has returned to her cottage on the island for the season. With her are Mr. and Mrs. R. Wesley Burnham and son Frederick of Flatbush, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cannell of Everett, accompanied by Mrs. Cannell's sister, Miss Dresser, are occupying their camp house on the island.

Ma. and Mrs. Joseph Knox and family of Somerville, of the old cottage colony, are here for another season.

Harry Johnson and family of Everett are again occupying their camp house.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Atkinson and family of Everett accompanied by Miss Sadie Atkinson, sister of Mr. Atkinson, have returned to the island for another season.

Mr. and Mrs. George Whittier and family from Everett are spending their first season on the island. Miss Celia Pratt is their guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cooper and family of Malden are enjoying cottage life on the island.

Mr. and Mrs. W. John Rounds and family of Malden are spending the season at a cottage. They have as guests Miss Mabel Dribble and Miss Deland.

East Gloucester

The song recital given Wednesday afternoon at "The Gallery on the Moors" by the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Atwood was attended by some 200 representative people of the North Shore, the capacity of the hall. The arrangements were under the charge of a committee of patronesses published in last week's issue, of which Mrs. Joseph E. Flannery of New York and Eastern Point was chairman and prime mover.

Commodore John Greenough presided and in some well considered remarks alluded briefly to to the laudable object of the occasion. He then introduced the Duc de Richelieu who told of his observations at the trench front in France and the exposures to inclement weather which brought on the terrible epidemic of the white plague and the efforts being made to curtail its spread.

The concert program followed. The Duchess de Richelieu possesses a pleasing voice, specially adapted to a pleasing interpretation of the English song classics and the lighter Italian airs, which she essayed and responded to several encores. Mr. Francis Moore, the pianist, proved himself a player of finish and technique and his interpretation of the Gruenfeld and Rachmaninow numbers met with much acceptance.

Following the concert program there was an informal reception and tea, Mrs. Stuart Walker of New York a house guest of Mrs. Flannery presiding at the Samovar.

Some $10.40 was netted for the cause.
